EXCLUSIVE INSIGHTS FROM CAMMS GROUP

10.25 – 10.40 (GMT)

How Technology Can Help Financial Services Organisations Mitigate Risk and Uncover Strategic Value

GRC professionals are often so focused on reducing risk and meeting regulatory requirements that they can overlook the strategic value in their organisation. This traditional approach could stifle opportunities, and risks that are worth taking to grow the business can end up being missed.

In this session we look at how technology can not only support businesses to meet regulatory requirements and address key risks, but how you can use the data in conjunction with your corporate strategy to uncover opportunities for efficiencies and growth guiding the business towards its strategic goals.

Discover how technology can support your business to:

- Break down your strategic goals into key tasks aligned to your risk data to measure objectives
- Use risk & compliance data to track against KPI's to monitor business performance
- Set up a control framework to understand when you are non-compliant, nearing your risk tolerance or are deviating from your strategic goals
- Extract business insights from risk & compliance data to support strategic decision making

11.10 – 11.25 (GMT)

Reimagining Risk Assessments: Bridging the Gap Between Best Practices and Execution

Do you spend countless hours assessing businesses risk, stuck in spreadsheets, sift through emails to find the most up-to-date information? After gathering all the necessary information from your line of business, you still need to review, validate, analyze, and assigned a risk score. All of this must be done before actionable insights can be drawn or mitigation efforts can take place. There is a significant gap in how risk is assessed and rate at which your business operates today.

As your programme evolves, the need to simplify the risk assessment process becomes unavoidable. But a common reality is that as your business continues to develop, risk assessment practices and resources have largely remained the same. It's not as simple as getting a risk management tool; it's about finding the right technology to adapt your processes in line with your current risk landscape and business objectives. In this session, we'll review risk assessment best practices businesses should consider based leading industry standards from ISO 31000, NIST CSF, and the latest DOJ Corporate Compliance Guidance. OneTrust will explore these concepts through the lens of modern-day technology that can help to alleviate the manual and subjective nature of risk assessments.

Key Takeaways:

- Familiarise yourself with proven best practices and new perspectives on risk assessments
- Identify opportunities to collect risk insights in context through an automated questionnaire process
- Streamline risk identification with automation rules tied to your risk methodology

Navigating in the dynamic landscape of third-party risk management in the light PRA and DORA regulations

Working with third-party vendors is a necessity in today's digital-first and interconnected world. Whilst they are both necessary and critical, to enable businesses to provide their services, these relationships also expose organizations to a variety of operational, security, and financial risks. In our session, we will look into the ever-changing vendor risk management environment, in the light of the context of hitting the start date for PRA and preparing for DORA (Digital Operational Resilience Act) regulations.

Key learning points:

- Overview of the implications of working with third-parties in the context of regulatory pressures from DORA & PRA.
- Provide actionable guidance on next steps and best practices organizations can implement in order to keep up with the pressurized and rapidly evolving vendor risk landscape.
- Long-term strategies for building a future-proof and agile vendor risk management program that you can put your name behind.
